In spite of the challenging economic conditions, we have continued our focus on ensuring that the College remains the lowest cost of all the Jewish Day Schools in Sydney. As such, we have looked to absorb as many of the cost increases as possible, whilst ensuring that we continue to maintain a financially viable school for our students.

This is reinforced by our flat fee structure for each of the years between K-6, such that the cost to our parents is the same for Year K as it is all the way through to Year 6 (subject to annual increases). Based on other Jewish day schools' 2011 fees, and our 2012 fees, your 7 years at Mount Sinai would on average cost around $13,000 less than the equivalent fees at other Jewish day schools.

Both of these factors lead to considerable savings for you our parents, and, along with strong values and outstanding academics, continue to be one of the motivators that lead to parents deciding to send their children to the College.
